Week 6

This week was mid-term week, I needed some time to prepare for the exam, so I have not finish building pages. In fact, I have only completed building 30 percent of all the pages. The reason for the late completion can be attributed to the unfamiliarity with the Bootstrap.

Bootstrap is a great web development tools for web developers; however, for new users, it really needs to spend some time to familiarize with how to define class to each element and how to use the plugins in jQuery or JavaScript. I have read some Bootstrap tutorials and understand how to configure Bootstrap to make it combine in HTML, but well-understanding does not mean I can write a page as easy as it looks like. Therefore, I still need a little time to familiarize the usage of Bootstrap. I believe I can better understand on how to build a page using Bootstrap in a couple of weeks.

I put more focus on preparing exam this week, so I did not complete designing pages. I will put much effort on complete building the rest pages and start designing columns for database, hopefully I can finish these things in the next few weeks.

This is entirely my own work, except as disclosed in the documentation. I gave help to the following persons:
